TEACHING NOTES

Subject / Paper	Physics paper III Heat and Thermodynamics
Name of the Topic	Kinetic Theory of Gases
Hours Required	12 H
Learning Objectives	Maxwell's law of distribution of molecular speeds demonstrate experiment of mean free path, Transport phenomena
Previous knowledge to be reminded	macroscopic properties like Temp, vol & pressure of gas and microscopic properties like speed of molecules of gases
Synopsis : Kinetic theory of gases was developed by Maxwell, Clausius and others in explaining the behaviour of gases satisfactorily. The postulates of Kinetic theory of gases are as follows: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. All the gases are made up of molecules which are considered to be rigid, perfectly elastic and identical in all respects. 2. The molecules are in random motion with all the possible speeds in all directions. 3. Molecules in random motion collide with one another and walls of the container. The intermolecular forces between the molecules are neglected. 4. The collisions are perfectly elastic and there is no loss of kinetic energy during a collision. 5. The average distance travelled by a molecule between two collisions is known as its mean free path. On the basis of Kinetic theory of gases, the pressure exerted by the gas is $P = \frac{2}{3} (\text{KE of molecule})$
Examples / Illustrations	Behavior of Ideal gases, Graham's law
Additional Inputs	Brownian motion

7.10. INSTITUTIONAL VALUES AND BEST PRACTICES

BEST PRACTICE I: WATER QUALITY ANALYSIS

1. Title of the Practice: Water Quality Analysis

2. Objective of the Practice:

The objectives of the said activity/practice are

- To encourage the students to participate in the group activities so that they would learn to deal or interact with their surrounding people effectively and get their work done.
- To inculcate the habit of research so that more students would be attracted towards research there by laying foundation for the development of the country.
- To bring awareness among the students about their social responsibilities and to encourage the students to actively participate in social service activities

3. The Context:

Quality water is quite essential for the healthy society. Hence, the students are asked to analyse water for its quality and encouraged to educate the public about quality parameters of water and ill effects of consuming impure water as a part of social responsibility/ social service. This activity is being organised by Department of Chemistry. Students are encouraged to utilise the facilities and instruments available in the Chemistry laboratories for the analysis of water samples brought selectively from various villages/towns. Sometimes, students are encouraged to take help from surrounding Mineral water Plants for the analysis of water

4. The Practice:

Step 1: Display of Schedule

- Students (III BSc) were divided in to four groups. The lists of students in all groups were displayed on the notice board
- The details of villages/municipalities for water sample collection, schedule of the programme were displayed. Puttur municipality was chosen for the analysis.
- Dates for analysis in the chemistry lab and dates of visiting mineral water plant were also displayed
- Students were advised to note down the details

Step 2: Work done by students

- On 30.11.2019, visited various parts of Puttur town for collecting water samples. Collected water samples from GDC, Puttur (bore water), NGO Colony(bore water), Bus stand area (bore water), Gate Puttur (bore water), Municipal water collected from tap.

- Students were given demonstration to use the instrument Deep-vision Digital water and soil analysis kit model-161 using which TDS, total hardness and pH can be measured
- Students were given demonstration to do chemical analysis for nitrates and sulphates
- Each group analysed water sample from one area using the kit and chemical methods and collected the data
- Students also visited library and used internet for the optimum levels of these parameters and drew conclusions on the quality of water of various areas of Puttur town
- As a part of this analysis, to get better idea on the analysis process, students also visited ‘SWARNA WATER PLANT’ located in the town on 23.03.2022

Step 3: Motivation

- Students were motivated in the following way. They were explained about the ill effects of consuming impure water. They were given details about the types of diseases people are prone to get by using impure water and annual death cases in India and in the entire world. Hence, water quality analysis is a very important task to be done for saving health and lives of the public.

5. Evidence of Success:

- Students enthusiastically participated in the entire analysis process indicating that they were truly inspired by the objectives of the process
- Students developed the concept of cooperative learning i.e. learning from one another among themselves
- Students reported the analysis results accurately by performing analysis on their own
- Students enlightened the public regarding the quality of water they are consuming and plausible ill effects

6. Problems encountered and Resources required:

- Few students encountered the difficulties in handling the instruments, later adjusted themselves
- Some students faced difficulties in finding the data related to water analysis from internet indicating that they are not used to handling computers and browsing process
- Reference books, few systems with net facility
- Instruments and chemicals for analysis

Best Practice - Organic Leafy Vegetable and Vegetable cultivation

2022-2023

The department of Botany initiated cultivation of Organic leafy vegetable and other vegetables in the Botanical Garden as one of the best practices of the Department. The students of III B. Sc (BZC, BBC & MBC) are engaged in the Leafy vegetable and other vegetable cultivation by collecting the best varieties of the crop from their villages followed by planting, maintenance and monitoring of the plants with proper irrigation and organic manure. The first crop is distributed among the staff and students at the college. This practice inculcates the habit of organic farming in the minds of young students, and it promotes the utilization of organic manures and signifies the same. Utilization of Green manure is one of the adaptations for the mitigation of chemical fertilizers that generally show adverse effects.
